MACKENZIE RECOGNIZES KIM DOYLE AS A SENIOR ASSOCIATE

Seattle, Washington – Interior Designer Kim Doyle is receiving recognition as a senior associate at Mackenzie. “When we brought Kim to Mackenzie several years ago, she had an immediate impact on all our design disciplines,” said Brett Hanson, Mackenzie’s Seattle Branch Manager. “Her glowing personality and design expertise make her a valued team member, and we look forward to seeing her grow at Mackenzie for years to come.”

Doyle is a project manager in Mackenzie’s Interiors Department, with a current design focus in public, education, and federal project types. Her expansive portfolio includes Bainbridge Island Fire Stations 21 and 22, Kalama Library renovations, and the new Albany and Lake Oswego Police stations in Oregon. “I am extremely humbled by the recognition of becoming a senior associate within the firm,” Doyle said. “I have a great group of mentors and colleagues that have supported me in so many ways. I am excited for what is to come in the future.”

Doyle is National Council for Interior Design Qualification certified, and is a certified Green Globes Professional (GGP)—a certification program from the Green Building Initiative. For the past seven years she has volunteered with NCIDQ as an application exam grader on the practicum development committee. Doyle carries an associate’s degree in interior design from Clover Park Technical College of Lakewood, WA.
